Hybrid Lecture on Monday, April 15, 2024, 7:00 pm

This study deals with Roman Imperial building programme in Asia Minor during the age of Vespasian. Many studies of Imperial Roman presence in Asia Minor through their building programme have already been studied in recent years. However, Vespasian's building programme has so far been mostly disregarded despite there is a body of evidence to address several aspects of this topic. My research project aims to plug this gap through questioning what distinguished Vespasian's Building Programme in Asia Minor, from that of his predecessors and successors, the Julio – Claudians and Adoptive Emperors. It deals with the role of the Flavian Building Programme in Asia Minor and the functions it fulfilled.

In person at the TAA (Turkish-American Association), Cinnah Caddesi No: 20
